The growth of Vietnam's rubber plantation area and quantity

Southeast Asia is the most important rubber growing region in the world. Thailand, Indonesia, and Vietnam are the three largest rubber-producing countries with the total production accounting for 65% of global natural rubber output, below is a comparison of the productivity of Vietnam and Thailand.

(Source: The report of natural rubber industry of VCBS Research and Analysis Department, January 6, 2020).

Vietnam has the world's third-largest output of rubber, however, up to 80% of natural rubber is exported as raw processing. The processing technology is limited compared to other countries in the region, not yet able to meet the raw materials for the domestic rubber industry. China is Vietnam's largest natural rubber export market, consuming over 65% of Vietnam's total natural rubber and is on an upward trend.
